Nicolas Cage's latest role: proud papa.

The Oscar-winning actor and his wife, Alice Kim Cage, welcomed son Kal-el Coppola Cage into the world Monday morning, Cage's publicist, Annett Wolf, confirmed.

"They are healthy and happy and it's quite lovely," Wolf said in a statement.

Cage's new superboy was born in New York City. None of his vital statistics were released...or word on any potential superpowers: The tyke's unusual moniker, Kal-el, is also the birth name of Superman.

It's the first child for Kim, 21, and the second for Cage, who has a 14-year-old son from a previous relationship. Cage, 41, and Kim first met in February 2004, when the Moonstruck star visited a sushi restaurant where his then-wife was a waitress. The duo tied the knot in a private ceremony in June of the same year. In addition to manning diaper duty for the next few months, Cage has an ambitious slate ahead of him.

The Lord of War star has no fewer than seven films in the works, including a follow-up to last year's action blockbuster National Treasure and an untitled September 11 project with director Oliver Stone. Cage next hits the big screen in the The Weather Man, opposite Michael Caine and Hope Davis, out Oct. 28.

The storybook Courtship and marriage

Nicolas Cage and friends were out and about in L.A., socializing on Valentine's Day 2004 when Nic met his future bride, Alice Kim. According to the actor, she bolted after just five minutes of conversation. The smitten star passed her a note, with his phone number, asking why she took off. Nicolas went on to woo her with an invitation to visit the Grand Canyon.

CAGE'S ROMANTIC DATE

Eccentric NICOLAS CAGE knows how to show a woman a good time -he took his new wife ALICE KIM on a Grand Canyon hike and then flew her to San Francisco for a romantic meal on their first date. The actor did the honorable thing and asked Kim's mother for permission to court her daughter, after meeting her in Las Vegas, Nevada. He then took the smitten waitress on a whistle-stop trip of a lifetime. Cage says, "I told her, 'I know some Indians at the bottom of the Grand Canyon who are friends of mine. Why don't we go on a date and I'll take you to meet these Indians?'"

"I love the canyon and I go there for hikes and there was this beautiful waterfall which I wanted to take her to, so I got permission from her mother to take her. "We flew to Arizona, we got on a helicopter and the helicopter flew into the canyon... We landed and we went on the hike and I could never find the waterfall, we got lost and we had a nice little picnic, and I had to get her back by 11 o'clock. "So I got back on the plane, but I said, 'Look, we've got two more hours, I wanna spend some more time with you...' so I turned the plane around and we landed in San Francisco and we had a nice romantic dinner and then I got her home."

CAGE ASTOUNDED BY HIS FEARLESS WIFE

Nicolas Cage has come to realise just how fearless his new bride Alice Kim can be, after she read a book just feet away from lions in South Africa. Following Cage and Kim's 30 July (04) wedding, the couple spent their honeymoon in Corsica and Venice, before jetting off to South Africa, where the actor filmed his movie Lord of War. And while Cage was thrilled his wife could be with him as he went on safari in Kruger National Park during breaks in filming, he was highly concerned about her fearless nature.

He says, "There were two lions sleeping outside the tent, literally like 10 feet away, a male and a female. I was in the tent and Alice was sitting outside the tent. "I said, 'Honey, I think it would be a good idea if you came inside the tent and stayed away from the lions.' She said, 'No, it's okay. I'm just reading the Da Vinci Code, don't worry about it. They're just like regular cats.'" "She thought they were like regular cats, which is pretty interesting. She definitely is brave. In any event, we had a lot of fun."
